

Who or What Is JL EverydayHelper?

JL EverydayHelper is a low-threshold, hobby-based support service that offers light everyday assistance, personal help, and small practical tasks within the HSL area (zones A–D).

The service is provided by James Lehtonen, who works calmly, reliably, and customer-oriented—without official company structures, contracts, or bureaucracy.

The service is non-commercial, small-scale and hobby-based, intended for people who benefit even from small amounts of everyday help.

It is not a social service or an official personal assistance service, but friendly, practical support for daily life.

1. Operating Principles

- Low-threshold help without binding contracts
- Confidentiality and privacy
- Not a business – hobby-based activity
- Clear pricing and straightforward communication
- Tasks performed using the client's own tools (except window cleaning, where own tools are brought)
- No driver's license or car – services are done using public transport

6. Summary for the Association

JL EverydayHelper can be helpful for an association by providing:

- light everyday support for members
- temporary, flexible help without commitments
- assistance for people who benefit even from small tasks
- digital/technology support for seniors or less tech-skilled individuals
- friendly, safe additional support without replacing formal social services

This work is clearly low-threshold, everyday support, which does not replace official social services but complements them by offering small, quickly available help that can greatly ease daily life.
